I opened. The President stated that, from the manner in which the prosecution was being conducted, Congress was extremely of opinion that it was Lieutenant-Adjutant Richardson, being recalled and questioned by the Court, then deposed: Private Beville was guarded by the prisoner, and he was not stated, because his evidence before this Court was merely directed from his summary of evidence as given by him in the orderly room. He was first confined on or about the 14th of April last. I consider that the Court is the proper tribunal to determine punishment for the offence which he committed, it is necessary to put him into the guard-room. The President reiterated his question as to whether witnesses could be examined in the guard-room in a general sense, punishment for a crime? The prosecutor (who had called for a newspaper) remain d reading it, standing with his back to the (sic) objected that the witness had already stated that he was not in the guard-room, and that he was not punishment for the offences Beville had committed, submitted that the Court ought not to press him answer further. The witness was directed to withdraw. The witness was proceeding to urge the view had already expressed as to the last question put the President to Lieutenant-Adjutant Richardson when the Court was again cleared. On re-assembling the Judge-Advocate read a minute which had been placed on record by the minute recorder the fact that the prosecutor had called for a newspaper during the examination of a witness, and that the witness had been asked to stand, remained standing with his back to the fire in a manner that was disrespectful to the Court. That what standing he had called out in a disrespectful manner. The question had been answered already, and the question being put by the Court as to the sufficiency of the answer rendered by witness. The witness Lieutenant-Adjutant Richardson being asked whether he considered it necessary to be in a guard-room to be in a general sense a punishment—reiterated his former reply, and did not direct answer the question. He was directed to withdraw. The prisoner here handed in a statement to the President. The prosecutor then read the receipt of this statement, but the Court overruled the objection. This statement by the prisoner was as follows:—I respectfully beg to bring under the notice of the Court the fact of my being in the guard-room, directed the adjutant to be in the guard-room, and the Court, in the ante-room, in my presence and that of numerous officers, and said, "You have a right to decline to answer questions which do not concern the right of the prisoner to be confined or words to that effect. The prosecutor requested the Court to call the adjutant and to question him as to what he had said in the ante-room in the manner in which the prisoner had stated. The Court acceded to the prosecutor's request. Lieutenant Adjutant Richardson was recalled questioned by the Court as follows:—Did Lieutenant Adjutant Richardson make any remarks to you whilst you were leaving the Court, you being then under examination? Answer: "Colonel Hamilton said to me that I ought not to allow the Court to press me, or words to that effect, and that I was not to answer the questions; also, that I ought to produce the newspaper proposed to be preferred against me. That, I think, was all. The witness was directed by the Court to withdraw. The Court called for private Cole and gunner Kelly. Gunner Kelly in the presence of private Cole, heard to his statement that private Cole had said that he was not in the guard-room, and that Captain Saunders was drawn on the line of march he (private Cole) would be telling a lie." Gunner Butcher was then called in, and when at the presence of private Cole, was similarly questioned as to whether he had heard private Cole say that effect that Cole had said that "if he (private Cole) should say that Captain Saunders was drunk betwixt Lambing Flat and Sydney, he would be telling a lie." Private Cole interjected by the Court: "I have heard what you say, Gunner. Do you know what you have sworn as to having no conversation at all, during the sitting of the Court, with gunner Butcher and Kelly, with reference to Captain Saunders?" A: "I do. I might have been talking with Butcher and Kelly, but I never said that. Gunner Butcher and private Pike told me the other day in officers' mess kitchen that five or six men were coming to see me, and that they were going to ask me 'best' one, it would be a queer thing. Private went down to Hogan on the regimental guard and asked him if he had ever heard me say that I was drunk and sober on the 14th of April. Hogan said he had drunk or sober on the 14th of April, and he had heard me say that I was drunk and sober, and he had sworn against me if he did. Pike then came up and swore against me if he did. Private then said he was going to swear against me, and was gunner Butcher. The witness was then given by Cole was read over the Deputy Judge Advocate to the witness twice, and Cole was then directed to withdraw. The Court called upon the prosecutor for reply. The prosecutor submitted that he had, as he conceived, a legal right to make a final reply. The Court ought to be called upon to make his reply before he did so. The witness was cleared. On re-assembling, the Court called upon Colonel Hamilton for his reply. It ruled that the reply must be a nude. The Deputy Judge Advocate pointed out to the Court that the witness had been asked to produce a receipt before the rejoinder, and that the reply was inadmissible. The prosecutor then replied. Mr. President and gentlemen, Members of Court Martial.—As I did not trespass long on your patience, and indulgence in opening his prosecution, and as the case for the defence is a simple one, and reviewed in an elaborate address—I do not do that the same privilege which has been accorded the prisoner will be granted to me. For it has been said that the Court should not be kept waiting likewise—after the extra long delay in the defence which has been adopted by the prisoner, and me fully allowed him by this Court; and, in reply, in this prosecution, I stand hardly less on my defence than the prisoner does. I beg to thank you, your carefulness, in my reply, to avoid all irrelevant commentary; to discuss only the weight and value evidence which is actually before the Court; to notice leading and prominent points and features of the case, and to leave out of consideration all the determining questions of credibility which involved in the minutiae of some, but, I submit, not much conflicting testimony. And, as the service of the defence begins with the assertion that the case for the prisoner is a simple one, and failed, I may be pardoned, in commencing my reply, for the statement of my belief, that is, that the case for the prosecution has been corroborated by the evidence, on which defence is founded. But such statements by either party are valuable, and I will now—as nearly as seems to be expedient—state the case for the defence, as by hypothesis, and state the case for the prosecution, as by hypothesis. And, happily, the first point is the one to which my own private feeling first led me. For, in the very first paragraph of the defence is the charge of all the most painful and offensive to a gentleman: or at least to a man of honour, and it is that he had been charged deliberately, am in other passages of the defence (and I am sure that I have been charged by insinuation, and by innuendo, and by implication, and by suggestion, and by having instituted these proceedings, and by the feelings of personal animosity towards the prisoner, distinctly and solemnly deny that there is any foundation for this accusation against me. That I have been charged with having been the cause of the proceedings against the defence has taken, I freely admit, and I freely admit that the feelings in the course of the trial may not, perhaps have been kept always under due control, may have been allowed to run on, and I am not sorry to say, and uncorrected, and I am not sorry to say, that I have said any kind towards Captain Saunders had anything to do with the institution of these proceedings, or, that I was actuated by any other motive than that of my professional duty, and even of good-will and kindness towards myself—is a charge which I feel myself on my honour as a gentleman, and an officer, to deny in my evidence. I have already emphatically denied it in my evidence, and I feel myself bound to the Court pointedly and earnestly to the admission of the prisoner, which are in evidence, that my conduct towards him, at least up to January last, had been marked by the most perfect civility and respect, and I leave it to the Court to judge how far the indignation which I have felt, and which I may perhaps have shown too openly at gratuitous imputations, do not detract from my own efforts to preserve this trial as free as possible from any undue influence.

said nothing to the charge. Ellen Loebey, wife of Elmer Loebey, of Campbell-street, publican, deposed that, on the 4th November, prisoner—whom she knew as Moses Toth's collector—came to her for payment of an account for beer, and paid £25.5s. She said she gave him a receipt; she afterwards gave a receipt to Mr. Gill Thomas Gill, clerk in the employ of Messrs. Toth and Co. deposed that the receipt produced to her by Mrs. Loebey, on the 12th December; and that she had given it to her on the 12th of the month. James Ffryers, cash-keeper in the office of Messrs. Toth and Co. deposed that the firm consists of Robert Toth, Frederick Toth, and James S. Mitchell; prisoner was their services collector of orders and cash; and it was duty to account daily to witnesses for moneys received, he was in the habit of doing so; he last accounted to him on the 3rd November last, since which date he has paid him any money; he has not accounted for a sum of £22 6s., as paid to him by Mrs. Leach, on 4th November. On cross-examination by Mr. Dallas monitor to the office of collector, about eighteen months since, that he was to account to him daily for his collections—and did so until the 4th November, but not on that day the cashbook (produced) shows on what date prisoner gave moneys to him, but not the date of payment by the customer to prisoner; the moneys paid in by prisoner corresponded with the sums set out in the butts of the receipt book, or witness would not give his receipt for it; had no means of judging whether the sums named in the butts truly represented the sums for which the receipt was given; prisoner was in the habit of making his daily payments, sometimes amounting to £500 or £200:

duties were confined to Sydney and the suburbs. Pair Leshen, of Parramatta-street, publican, deposed that the 4th November he paid prisoner, as the collector Messrs. Tooth and Co., the sum of £39, which he took his receipts; he afterwards g
the receipt to Mr. Gill. Mr. Gill produced receipt, and Mr. Phipps deposed that prisoner has accounted for the money. Susan Quigley, wife of Thom Quigley, of Goulburn-street, publican, deposed that on 4th November she paid the prisoner, for Messrs. Tooth

Co. 215 12s., and took his receipt, which she afterwards gave to Mr. GILL. Mr. Gills, Gill and Phypers gave evidence of like effect to that in regard of the two previous suits. Mr. Dalley addressed the Bench, contending that sufficient evidence had not been given of the nature of prisoner's employment and of the mode in which he was to account for moneys received. The Bench considered that sufficient evidence had been adduced to send the case to another tribunal, and committed the prisoner for trial at the Central Criminal Court.

William Webb, 30, James Forrester, 18, and Hare, 17, were charged with having, about one a.m. on 19th instant, on the high road between Bangor and Brec, being armed, stopped and robbed her. Majest mail. Senior-constable McAlister deposed that on 22d May, upon information received, he apprehended prisoners Forrester and Webb, the prisoner Hare being in custody for unlawfully wounding one McAlister, and they on their way from the lock-up to the steamer wharf, and he told them that their mates (Hare and Webb) were in the lock-up for the same offence.

then; they went back, and witness then detained them a charge of having stopped and robbed the mail; they said nothing to the charge; on Webb found a cheque for £ drawn by Charles Lawson, a cheque for £100 drawn by Henry Hogarth, a cheque drawn by Jones for £12 1s a cheque by Spencer L. Bransby for £10 10s, a cheque W. Graham for £10, one half of a £20 note, one half of £10 note, and halves of nineteen £1 notes, 16s. silver and copper money, with a watch.

chain, two gold rings, several revolver bullets, a letter signed Lawrence, several scraps of letters, a piece of paper on which is the name of William Cooper, and sundries; Forrester found one £5 note, five £1 notes, halves of £5 notes, ten halves of £1 notes, a promissory note for £5, 10s, 10d in favour of Daniel Egan, a cheque by Charles Chippendale for £24s, a photograph male likeness and case, 6 album photographs, a letter signed Jacob Vivian, lady's gold watch and chain and key, and a lot of sundries on Henry Hare found a lot of sundries; proceeded then colored man, Kellins, a steamer, then lying at wharf at Nelligen, and found two saddles with stirrups, &c., complete, and from the store a parcel was handed to him in which he found a .38 calibre revolver (capped and loaded), and some wearing apparel, which afterwards Forrester claimed as his; at the Nelligen Hotel, where prisoners had been stopping, he found a quantity of wearing apparel, some provisions, loaded six chamber revolver, and sundries; and in the stockyard were three horses which the landlord said were left in his charge by the prisoners; one is a bay, of about fourteen hands, the second a dark chestnut mare of about fifteen hands and the third a chestnut of about fifteen hands. Hare claimed the bay horse as his, and said that Forrester rode the chestnut horse; he said nothing about the mare. Prisoners were then remanded until Thursday next.

Mary Ann Smith was summarily convicted of having stolen one brooch, one ring, and a piece of chain, valued at 20s., the property of Christopher Collins, and was sentenced to three months' imprisonment.

Thomas Grant was fined 20s. for having assaulted on stable G'O'Neill, who took him into custody for riotous conduct while drunk in a public place.

Thomas Grant and Catherine Eganney, were fined 2 each for riotous conduct, and Mary Chandler was fined 40¢ for having used obscene language while drunk in public places.

IMPERIAL SALE.
QUEENSLAND.
MOGOA DISTRICT.
A FIRST-CLASS RUN,

Terms—One-third cash; residue by approved bills at twelve and twenty-four months, with bank discount, secured upon the stock and stations.

MORT AND CO. have received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, at 11 o'clock, on WEDNESDAY, 1st July, A first-class run, situate in the Ngongu district, recently taken up under the Pastoral Occupation Act, of 1862.

The run comprises three blocks, the general character of the country being undulating downs and broad level fringing the coast. The soil is a rich, deep, black, highly tested during the last season, and during the whole of the year.

PERMANENT WATER.

With the above valuable run will be sold the following sheep:—

EWES—24 years and upwards.....	3340
(Very few old sheep)
Middens.....	1408
WEANERS—mixed.....	2685
WETHERS—2 years old.....	1300
3 to 5 years old.....	1300
RAMS.....	115
Total.....	10,100 more or less.

* * The sheep are in prime condition, and the rams have been put in the ewe flocks to secure a lambing to commence in August.

Two first-class teams, with drugs and tackling complete; 16 horses, with carts, harness, stores, implements, &c., to be taken at a valuation.

On this property, which is under imperative instructions from the proprietor, now absent from the colony. It affords an opportunity of securing a very choice lot of sheep, together with a considerable extent of very superior country. The improvements comprise a few huts and sheepyards, the runs having only been recently occupied.

TUESDAY, June 2

At Lloyd's Rooms, Collins-street West, Melbourne.
 Screw Steamship QUERN.

To the Steamship Companies, Owners, Merchants, Shipowners, &c., and others interested generally in the Coasting Trade of Victoria, and the Queen and River Communication of New South Wales, South Australia,
 Tasmania, and New Zealand.

JAMES LAWRENCE has received instructions to sell by auction, at Lloyd's Rooms, on TUESDAY, June 2nd, at 12 o'clock,
 The beautiful screw steamer
 THE QUERN,
 74-horse power,
 250 tons burthen.

Built at Glasgow under special survey of the very best material, and fitted with the latest compartments, is admitted one of the strongest steamships at present in this port. Her model is a very handsome, combining all the latest and best for driving good speed, may save-going quantities, large carrying capacity, and light draught of water only drawing 9 feet when loaded with 250 tons cargo.

Her speed is well known as one of the fastest boats out of the colony.
Has two engines built by the celebrated builders, Wingate and Son, Glasgow, of the most approved construction, cylinders of 30 inches diameter, stroke of 26 inches. Tubular boiler being only about three years old, and in first-rate order.
Her storage is large and well ventilated, capable of accommodating five hundred sheep.

In consequence of the accident by fire, the vessel is totally disabled, and the cargo is damaged. The cargo is to be removed, which can be done at a trifling cost, and fitted in any way the purchaser may adopt. The former cabin capacity was equal to forty-one cabin passengers, besides steward's pantry, storeroom, ladies' saloon, etc. The vessel is only now in the market in consequence of the loss by accident by fire, and will be sold at the highest bidder.

Inventory, specification for repairs, and all further particulars to be had of the agents of the vessel.
